

We come together in harmony, existing only as one voice, spoken with the pure intention to heal the world through music. We are all part of one eternal flame, and we should never forget the attempts to put out that flame. When we remember the loss of a beautiful soul, we remember to live each day in peace, harmony, and understanding. Daniel Pearl's life was spent giving joy through his music and harmony. This was and is a priceless gift which we honor tonight with our creative unity and gratitude. We come together in solidarity, to sing together as one. I owe a debt of gratitude to the musician, who never gives in to darkness. Music's beacon of light always shines on our soul. When we join hands through music, we celebrate the light of the world.
